Thread: Where to buy a sleigh to pull? 03-12-2015, 11:55 am #1 Entry Date: February 2015 Posts: 30 Where to buy a sledge to pull? I want to make my scx10 drag monster, but then when I don't pull im, I want to be able to go very quickly. Where can I buy a sleigh for our trucks? Or am I just making one? Thank you! 03-12-2015, 01:41 pm #3 Rockstar Reptile Join ing date: March 2009 Location: arcola, Texas Publications: 820 Re: Where to buy a sledge to pull? There are clues here about your building. There were defiant sleds from the Magic Racing team, but from what I heard was he tore a bunch of people off on them. 03-12-2015, 02:13 pm #4 Holmes Hobbies Joining Date: January 2007 Location: No Where Jobs: 2,751 Re: Where to Buy A Sledge to Pull? Find something by pull guys, or be ready to open the wallet for max traxx-mike sledge here is what the astrologer says... The second series comes with a new linear sliding system, making it more usable on dirt, holding more weight, and running even smoother and then before that. Ski weighs at 48 lbs and will deal with up to £1,000. 03-14-2015, 8:44 pm #9 Mikes RC World Joining Date: March 2005 Location: Land NO 4wheeling Toyota cwarlers or drag races sortafast chevelles Posts: 8,813 Re: Where to buy a sledge to pull? Last year I wrote about how I had recorded the classic Hobico MaxTrax Sled Pull Remover, with plans to cover my recovery from it. Well, as he always does for projects, time got away with me. Fear is not though, the latch came out great! I had to take off every single nut and take it off, take off the rust, sand throughout the chassis... It ended up being something very major. After everything was clean, I took an extruded aluminum frame and it was painted with teflon-coated blue by a local store. The finish is as strong as powdercoat, without being so thick that the screw work box weight. The blue color and graphics are a throwback to the classic Bush beer pull sled that roamed the Midwest during the late 80's and early 90's. If you bring a big truck and pull a tractor, chances are that Bush's sled was there, what with the giant six pack as a judge, jury and executioner. For your information, mine is missing a six pack but I'm hoping to have one 3D printed before the end of the year. Everything came back together great, except having to do a little burring removal on the drivetrain gears as they put rough points from years of neglect. After assembly and some chain oils, it's time to move it to the track for some tests. The test we did, as it was instantly plugged into many jaws chassis'd 4x4 Mod trucks. For those who are not familiar with r/c pull, these are heavy and high voltage excavators of the world pulling 1/c. main wheel speed, torque and power. He saw the super hooked remover smooth and steady, having issues of putting an end to large Mod trucks. I've been using it now for months and it's better again! I'm really happy with how this restoration job came. I'm happy to own not only a nice piece of r/c history, but to be able to use it regularly! Not bad for something built about 30 years ago and this is relatively unchanged. Hobiko really made them right the first time. I've said that before and I'll say it again - the remover was 20 years before its time. If they reissue this day with the popularity of both sizing and full size tow truck, these sell. Here's hope one day the remover rides back! We're not even from January yet and RC4WD has already developed what will probably be the most interesting product release this year for me, RC4WD Intimidator Sled Drag.
